Intertextile Shanghai Home Textiles is set to return next week from 27 - 30 August in the National Exhibition and Convention Center in Shanghai. At the comprehensive trade event in Asia that covers the entire spectrum of home furnishing industry, visitors are able to source a wide range of home textile products. Apart from furniture fabrics, decorative fabrics and curtain fabrics that account for a large portion of products offered, product categories including digital printing, curtains, furniture leather and carpets & rugs are also worth exploring.

Digital printing solutions to manage excess stocks

Customisation has been the emerging trend for all products and home textile market is no exception. Instead of mass production, on-demand manufacturing has become so prevalent that traditional machinery has to be updated. Some of the top suppliers have been invited to set up a Micro Factory in Intertextile Shanghai, illustrating a streamlined workflow:

- Beijing Leatech: provides 3D simulation software that allows flexible design and efficient production.
- Kornit Digital: the leading digital textile printer will showcase its Kornit Allegro system which combines printing & drying in single step. The system eliminates unnecessary machineries, shortens production time and is widely applicable on multiple fabric types.
